Brainstorming Session on Harassment at Workplace

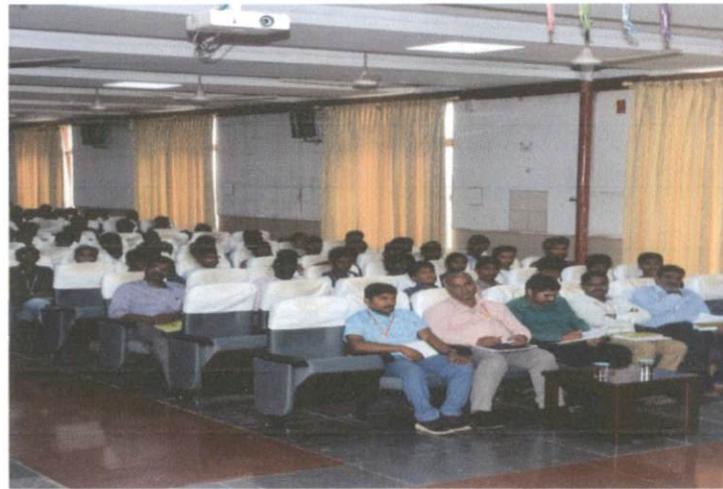

A brainstorming session on Harassment at Work Place took place on August-19th -2019, Dr. Kalpana HOD MBA department chaired this session, and coordinated with the co faculty members, students to attend, in discussion several means of harassment at work place were discussed in detail and various applicable enactments were shown to prevent and prohibit the harassment at work place. The harassment of verbal and nonverbal nature was portrayed with citations for better understanding. Students were created with awareness and means of approaching the appropriate authorities at the university under the guidance of Women Empowerment Cell specially earmarked for this purpose. Dr. Kalpana further talking on this said that

- Some harassing and flirting behaviours can be the same.
- Harassers and flirts often have similar feelings.
- A flirter and a person being flirted with often have similar feelings.
- Flirters and harassers may have similar intent - but their effect is different. Remember: the law is concerned with the impact of the behaviour, not the intent of it. What is important is how the behaviour is received.
- Victims of harassment often feel that they are in some way responsible. The victim is not at fault. Both males and females can be victims of sexual harassment, however the harasser is most often male.
- In some cases the harassment is not intended and the behaviour is not meant to offend. It is important for the "victim" or a third party to let the person know that the behaviour is not appreciated, and the person initiating the behaviour must take responsibility for his or her actions and stop the behaviour.
- Sexual harassment is an abuse of power. The harasser believes he or she has power over the individual in some way: they are older, stronger, are in a group, have influence because of the relationship (teacher, coach, employer), or believe they are more important because of popularity, gender, race, etc.

The session is co attended by VC, Registrar, Dean Student Affairs, Dean Women Empowerment and Development Cell, HOD's & Students.
